Dear Mr Howe

I currently live in Adelaide but grew up on the Yorke Peninsula. I now have three children that love going back to the Peninsula with me for family holidays.

We are shocked to learn of the proposed mining development and urge everything to be done to prevent this from happening.

The damage to the environment would be devastating and the danger to our health from the generation of toxic mining dust could be debilitating and eventually lethal.

My family and friends would not want to put ourselves and our children at risk and would cease to visit the Yorke Peninsula as the environmental beauty would also decline. We would not be the only ones to make this choice and this of course would mean an eventual decline in the tourism industry.

Please pass on our immediate concern to all

Yours sincerely,
