Hello Tina,
Reading through this REES Review I am amazed that we are pandering to the Energy Companies in pulling all energy audits, we would be happy to upskill our people who hold Certificate IV in Home Sustainability.

We see a better way to do this is an upgrade on the current system with a better quality audit, using tools like Power-Mate Lite, infrared thermometers with a upgrade training review.

We agree we don't need as many but there should be a space for an quality Home energy audit, bill shock is a fact of life.

The potential is that we will lose more people in this space in South Australia.

The Saver Group who have 25 contractors delivering energy efficiency products to homes throughout South Australia since 2009, still don't hear from Dept of Energy & Mining for over one year and Escosa for about the same time yet we have delivered up to 30,000 audits and about 60,000 retrofits in that time.

We cannot get any support as Escosa say you have to have an direct contract with an energy company.

Yet on your Approved Providers list half the providers would not be active

Just a quick email to voice my lack of support to professional field managers.

Regards

John Tilden
