Additional comments

I have operated a property adjacent to the mining lease since 1958, and during this time there has been interest in reopening this mine. Terramin have been the only company that has given the local landowners confidence that this mine will have no effect on adjoining properties. They have monitored all bores around the mine site and now have a great knowledge of the surrounding aquifer. The company will be under the same withdrawal restrictions as all properties with a current license.

I have been a member of the WCCC since its inception, but was disappointed with the conduct of many meetings with a local company with as many as four members trying to railroad this entire project. Many of the local practices by some disagreeing parties would not meet current EPA standards.

Having been a local resident and farmer for the past sixty years I have complete confidence that the Govt departments will ensure both the aquifer and environment will be protected and not damaged in any way
